then we decided we might as well try to go to the school board," said Hayes. "But Delaney, a favorite teacher, Eddie Lucas and Delaney were dismissed because of the boycott. 'The kids told him, 'We feel sorry for you.' The man drove away.

"What is a jail, anyway?" shouted a 15-year-old chairman of the group. "We're gonna go to more trouble than being thrown in jail before we get our freedom in this town."

The students have done this on their own, yet, and many people here think the police and merchants stooped too low to use jail to frighten the students.

"If we had a jail like the one at Talladega in 1930," said Delaney, "we'd have a few Negroes there right now." The students told him. "Why do you keep on coming here?"

"Oh, I'm here to see my son, Buzz Stokes," said Delaney. "I'm sure he's in jail, but I won't go home until I see him."

"I want to talk to Mr. Martin Luther King," Delaney said. "I want to tell him I want to go to college to be a lawyer."

"I want to be a lawyer," said Delaney. "I want to be a lawyer to help the people of the world." - End -
TALLADEGA COUNTY, Ala.--The death of Marilyn Mae Adams, a 21-year-old Negro woman who was shot by a Mississippi police officer after she attacked him with a knife, has touched off another Negro rights demonstration here.

The demonstration was scheduled to be held at 10 a.m. Thursday, Aug. 14, at the TCC, TALLADEGA COLLEGE CAMPUS 615, TALLADEGA, ALABAMA, and will be led by civil rights leaders. A 400-yard walking parade is planned through the village of Talladega College. Police officers will be on hand to supervise the demonstration.

The demonstration is one of several that have been planned in the area in recent weeks. Other demonstrations have been held in Montgomery, Selma, and Birmingham. The demonstrations are being organized by the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee (SNCC).

The death of Marilyn Mae Adams has sparked a series of demonstrations across the state, including one in Montgomery last week. The demonstrations are being held in response to the shooting of a Negro man by a Mississippi police officer in Jackson, Miss.

The shooting of Marilyn Mae Adams occurred on Aug. 10, when she attempted to pull a pistol on a Mississippi state trooper. The trooper shot her in the back, and she died later at a hospital.

The demonstration in Talladega is expected to draw a large crowd of demonstrators and will be led by SNCC leaders from the Talladega area. The demonstration is expected to be peaceful, and police officers will be on hand to ensure the safety of all participants.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla.—The site of the Republican National Convention is sometimes called a "magic city," because of its elaborate beach resorts and luxurious hotels.

As you enter this year-round vacation-land, you notice its skyscrapers towering high above palm trees, broad avenues, and pleasant blue waters. You can only feel that this is a city of vivid beauty.

But this is also a city that brushes aside the problems of black people in America. One could be sure that this was a perfect site for the Grand Old Party's overwhelmingly-white convention.

In this city, there is no unemployment problem, there are no ghetto problems, there are no slums. Because in this city, black faces are only sought to entertain the rich. This city can truly be thought of as a city without blackness.

3 DELEGATIONS TRYING TO REPRESENT ALABAMA

BY VILLA BRADFORD

HOUTON, Texas -- George C. Wallace brought his third-party political campaign to Houston earlier this month, and told his supporters the things they are afraid to talk about.

"We're going to start to get a little bit of a sense of real democracy in the United States," he said during a rally in the Houston Astrodome.

Wallace's speech was a call to action for his supporters, and he urged them to vote for him in the upcoming presidential election.

Wallace's rhetoric was a mix of patriotism and populism, and he promised to bring change to the country.

White B’ham Officer Fired

By W. L. GAMBLE

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — Early in the morning of Aug. 7, an uncontrollable alcoholic, a married police officer, James Montague, allegedly depressed by the recent death of his wife and accompanied by a partner, clashed with a rescuing bailiff, who was trying to serve Montague with a domestic violence restraining order.

The incident began at 2:15 a.m. when Officer Montague, along with another police officer, was responding to a report of a disturbance at a residence. Montague had allegedly been drinking excessively and had been involved in a domestic dispute earlier that day.

The bailiff, who was accompanied by a sửpport officer, arrived at the scene and attempted to serve Montague with a restraining order. Montague became agitated and began to threaten the bailiff, who retreated to his vehicle.

Montague then approached the vehicle and began to strike the bailiff with a baseball bat. He eventually surrendered to the rescuing officer and was taken into custody.

Montague was subsequently charged with assault on a police officer, resisting arrest, and contempt of court.

The case remains under investigation, and the officer's partner has been placed on administrative leave.

In addition to the charge of battery, Montague had been arrested on a domestic violence restraining order just two days earlier, on Aug. 5, when a young police woman was allegedly struck by Montague, who was under the influence of alcohol.

The officer's partner, who was also present at the scene, called for assistance and was ordered to stand by until Montague could be processed.

The incident has sparked outrage among local residents and law enforcement officials, who are calling for stronger measures to address domestic violence and restraining order violations.

Montague's case is still pending, and the police department is currently conducting an internal investigation into the incident. The officer's partner has been placed on administrative leave until the investigation is completed.

Court Order--A new order has been issued that requires Montague to undergo counseling and complete a domestic violence program before he can be released on bond. The order also mandates that Montague must remain sober and adhere to a strict curfew.

The police department has also increased its presence in the area, with additional patrols being conducted to ensure the safety of residents.

The incident has sparked a heated debate among community members, who are calling for greater accountability and transparency in the justice system.

The police department has released a statement expressing its commitment to investigating the incident thoroughly and holding the officer accountable for his actions.

‘Run-Around’ On Hospital Board?

By Frances Smith

TALLADEGA, Ala. — The Talladega Improvement Association is trying to get hold of a hospital board of trustees that deserted its trusteeship of the Talladega Memorial Hospital Thursday evening.

The group, which includes Dr. Jack Hethcox, an administrator, the Talladega Improvement Association, Strickland, added, new rules are written or the rules are 'Run-Around'.

"Run-around, so we'll end up on the association, Hurst said, he is afraid of a association, but not on the boa rd. We want to join the association, said Strickland, but no one has ever elected from the ranks of the Hospital Association by the members of the association. It is a fact that it is open TEM to join the association.

Some Negroes might pay that much to keep their jobs, but no one has ever shown them by Coach Lee, they said, that color of a boy's face--and his eagle eye--are the things to try to give us the run-around, as the three athletes have come to the realization that the spirit of a true athlete will always win in the final contest.

"Three years from now, Coach Lee expects Berry, Oliver, and Thomas in football, basketball, and track. But even if they are not in the school the following year, he continues, with his inspiration, these athletes led the freshman football team to a 1-11 mark against Montgomery junior school.
