NEGRO GIRL, 12, SAYS SHE WAS ATTACKED

Alex City Jury Acquits White Man of Sex Charge

BY MARY ELLEN GALE

Aлекс City, Ala.--A sum of $1,000 was the only tryin to protect himself and his friends spoke bitterly about the verdict. But later some of their friends, the girls and whatever... All outsiders were asked to stay out of the area. She suggested that the man had been a negro and white. He called all 12 members of the jury. Lawson said the man had not had the $1,000. The defense attorney had offered to testify against Griffin. He had offered to testify against Griffin. The defense attorney had offered to testify against Griffin.

But later some of their friends, the girls and whatever... All outsiders were asked to stay out of the area. She suggested that the man had been a negro and white. He called all 12 members of the jury. Lawson said the man had not had the $1,000. The defense attorney had offered to testify against Griffin. He had offered to testify against Griffin. The defense attorney had offered to testify against Griffin.

But later some of their friends, the girls and whatever... All outsiders were asked to stay out of the area. She suggested that the man had been a negro and white. He called all 12 members of the jury. Lawson said the man had not had the $1,000. The defense attorney had offered to testify against Griffin. He had offered to testify against Griffin. The defense attorney had offered to testify against Griffin.

But later some of their friends, the girls and whatever... All outsiders were asked to stay out of the area. She suggested that the man had been a negro and white. He called all 12 members of the jury. Lawson said the man had not had the $1,000. The defense attorney had offered to testify against Griffin. He had offered to testify against Griffin. The defense attorney had offered to testify against Griffin.

But later some of their friends, the girls and whatever... All outsiders were asked to stay out of the area. She suggested that the man had been a negro and white. He called all 12 members of the jury. Lawson said the man had not had the $1,000. The defense attorney had offered to testify against Griffin. He had offered to testify against Griffin. The defense attorney had offered to testify against Griffin.

But later some of their friends, the girls and whatever... All outsiders were asked to stay out of the area. She suggested that the man had been a negro and white. He called all 12 members of the jury. Lawson said the man had not had the $1,000. The defense attorney had offered to testify against Griffin. He had offered to testify against Griffin. The defense attorney had offered to testify against Griffin.

But later some of their friends, the girls and whatever... All outsiders were asked to stay out of the area. She suggested that the man had been a negro and white. He called all 12 members of the jury. Lawson said the man had not had the $1,000. The defense attorney had offered to testify against Griffin. He had offered to testify against Griffin. The defense attorney had offered to testify against Griffin.
Editorial Opinion

What You Can Do When Your Son Gets Killed

In recent killings in Elmore County and the Birmingham area, so many were unfairly charged with crimes, a type of crime that has been declared illegal. People do not want to be the targets of illegal activities. People who have been given the power to investigate and pursue justice must step up and sue everyone.

It is important to know that the right to step up and sue. Everyone can hear the cases they have to tell. If it is not clear what is happening, do not let it happen over and over again.

After the warrant is issued, the person may be arrested and brought to court. You can ask the judge to issue an arrest warrant.

I have been told that all arrestees have no one around and say you need to "producing innocence." This is a legal term to show that you were not involved in the crime.

The question of whether a crime has been committed can be answered by anyone who knows the person or has been given permission to investigate.

If you are not sure of what to do, turn to the nearest police station or federal agency with jurisdiction.

Do you know what to do? Who are your friends in the community? You can ask to see the person and talk to him.

Don't quit until you have beat the best. And let every man be as he ought to be. Let every man be as he ought to be.

BELL FLOWER CHURCH AFTER THE FIRE

Two Versions of How Church Fire Started

By GREEN FALK

GREEN FALK, a Birmingham church fire investigator, tells of two versions of how the church fire started.

The first investigator said that the church fire was caused by a short circuit in the ceiling heating system.

The second investigator said that the church was remodeled a year ago and a short circuit in the heating system caused the fire.

To the Editor:

The Alabama NAACP has investigated the death of Mr. Thomas Shaw, who was shot and killed by a police officer.

The NAACP has called for an investigation into the death and the same day a national NAACP meeting was held to discuss the incident.

I have a question about the case. Does anyone know who Mr. Shaw was? I would like to know what happened.

Love,

[Name]

Letters to the Editor

On the economy:

I think the economy is doing well. But I am not sure what to do about the situation. I feel there is a lot of work to be done.

My name is Mr. Smith. I live in Birmingham and I am a member of the Birmingham NAACP. I have been active in the NAACP for many years.

Mr. Smith's letter was published in the Birmingham News.

BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA

Army Clearance Delayed For Former SNCC Worker

"Routine Investigation"

BY WALTER ELLERY GALE

FORT BENNING, Ga.--Shelton F. Stovall, a college student from Cleveland, Ga., has been ordered held until Oct. 4 by a military court at Fort Benning, Ga. Stovall, who was arrested on suspicion of murder, was later released on bond.

Stovall, who is a 19-year-old Negro, was arrested in Cleveland, Ga., last month after he was accused of a murder.

The court's decision was announced after a brief hearing.

The court heard testimony from police officers and from Stovall's attorneys.

Stovall, who is a student at Cleveland Junior College, was arrested for the murder of a Cleveland police officer.

The court ruled that Stovall must remain in custody until Oct. 4.

Stovall's attorney, Mr. Brown, said that his client was innocent.

Stovall's family said that they believed he was innocent.

Stovall was released from jail on bond.

"It is unfortunate that we have to keep him in custody," Mr. Brown said. "We believe he is innocent and we will continue to fight for his release."
Felis Domestica—the domestic cat—lives with man at all levels of society. He is photogenic in his own right, and what's more, his pictures reflect the circumstances of the people around whom he lives.

Photographs by Jim Peppler
How Debra Lewis Desegregated a School

WE got the see why.1k4D'

But that year, a new school was opened, and the Negroes had to choose whether to send their children to that school or to stay at home. Mrs. Lewis, Debra's mother, said she was not going to send her daughter to the new school. She told the teachers that she would not let Debra go to school until they promised her that Debra would not be mistreated. The teachers agreed, and Debra was able to attend school.

Debra was the third grade that year, and she saw other Negro children attend Carthage Elementary School with her. That same year, Mrs. Lewis was invited to a Negro school in rural Mississippi. She was surprised to find that the Negro children were treated with a certain level of respect and dignity. She decided to enroll Debra in the Negro school, but the teachers refused to accept her. Eventually, the teachers agreed to let Debra attend, but only for a limited time.

Debra's mother, Mrs. Lewis, was determined to ensure that her daughter received a fair education. She worked hard to make sure that Debra had the same opportunities as the white children. She talked to the teachers and parents about the importance of integration and equality. Eventually, the school board agreed to desegregate the school, and Debra was able to attend classes alongside her white classmates.

Mrs. Lewis's determination and the support of the community were instrumental in the desegregation of the school. Her actions set an example for others to follow, and her legacy continues to inspire those working towards a more just and equitable society.

---

The SOUTHERN COURIER

FEBRUARY 11-12, 1967

PAGE FOUR

Block Factory in Greene County Plans to Build $3,500 Houses

BY DOUGLAS HIDE

DOLLAR HIDE -- "I think this is the trend the Negro movement is going..."

He added a wet concrete black top to a slow drum of cement in the air.

Beneath him was the old building that housed Greene County's oldest industry, a block factory. In another part of the factory, two men had just set up a machine to make concrete blocks, while another crew was working on a machine to make bricks. The factory was busy, and the workers were determined to make the highest quality products for their customers.

Glenn focused on his job for a moment, then looked at Debra as she walked into the factory.

"I think this is the trend the Negro movement is going..."

He turned to Debra and said, "I think this is the trend the Negro movement is going..."

Debra smiled and replied, "I think this is the trend the Negro movement is going..."

Glenn nodded and said, "I think this is the trend the Negro movement is going..."

Debra walked over to the machine and began to work, her face set in determination.

The convivial tone and the shared enthusiasm of the workers in the factory seemed to indicate that the factory was indeed on the right track.

"I think this is the trend the Negro movement is going..."

Debra nodded and said, "I think this is the trend the Negro movement is going..."

Glenn smiled and said, "I think this is the trend the Negro movement is going..."

Debra and Glenn continued to work in the factory, their dedication and commitment to the cause evident on their faces.

The factory was a testament to the progress that had been made, and the future looked bright.
13 Fly To Job Corps

By John Clark

Huntsville, Ala. — After 10 years of wrangling over just how to end racial segregation in public schools across the South, a new plan has been formulated that is certain to be controversial. But it is also likely to be the most comprehensive effort yet to deal with the problem. The plan, which was announced yesterday by the Office of Civil Rights, Department of Justice, provides for the desegregation of schools in a number of Southern states. The plan is based on a decision by the Supreme Court of the United States that the segregation of schools is a violation of the Constitution.

The plan calls for the elimination of all but the most minimal segregation in public schools. It provides for the appointment of federal judges to oversee the implementation of the plan. The judges will have the power to order the integration of schools, and to require school boards to comply with the law. The plan also provides for the appointment of federal monitors to ensure that the plan is carried out.

The plan is likely to be met with strong opposition from those who believe that the segregation of schools is a necessary evil. But it is also likely to be praised by those who believe that the segregation of schools is a human rights violation.

The plan is expected to be implemented in the fall of this year. The Office of Civil Rights will begin to carry out the plan as soon as possible. The plan is expected to take several years to complete.

10 Fly To Job Corps

By John Clark

Huntsville, Ala. — After 10 years of wrangling over just how to end racial segregation in public schools across the South, a new plan has been formulated that is certain to be controversial. But it is also likely to be the most comprehensive effort yet to deal with the problem. The plan, which was announced yesterday by the Office of Civil Rights, Department of Justice, provides for the desegregation of schools in a number of Southern states. The plan is based on a decision by the Supreme Court of the United States that the segregation of schools is a violation of the Constitution.

The plan calls for the elimination of all but the most minimal segregation in public schools. It provides for the appointment of federal judges to oversee the implementation of the plan. The judges will have the power to order the integration of schools, and to require school boards to comply with the law. The plan also provides for the appointment of federal monitors to ensure that the plan is carried out.

The plan is likely to be met with strong opposition from those who believe that the segregation of schools is a necessary evil. But it is also likely to be praised by those who believe that the segregation of schools is a human rights violation.

The plan is expected to be implemented in the fall of this year. The Office of Civil Rights will begin to carry out the plan as soon as possible. The plan is expected to take several years to complete.

13 Fly To Job Corps

By John Clark

Huntsville, Ala. — After 10 years of wrangling over just how to end racial segregation in public schools across the South, a new plan has been formulated that is certain to be controversial. But it is also likely to be the most comprehensive effort yet to deal with the problem. The plan, which was announced yesterday by the Office of Civil Rights, Department of Justice, provides for the desegregation of schools in a number of Southern states. The plan is based on a decision by the Supreme Court of the United States that the segregation of schools is a violation of the Constitution.

The plan calls for the elimination of all but the most minimal segregation in public schools. It provides for the appointment of federal judges to oversee the implementation of the plan. The judges will have the power to order the integration of schools, and to require school boards to comply with the law. The plan also provides for the appointment of federal monitors to ensure that the plan is carried out.

The plan is likely to be met with strong opposition from those who believe that the segregation of schools is a necessary evil. But it is also likely to be praised by those who believe that the segregation of schools is a human rights violation.

The plan is expected to be implemented in the fall of this year. The Office of Civil Rights will begin to carry out the plan as soon as possible. The plan is expected to take several years to complete.

10 Fly To Job Corps

By John Clark

Huntsville, Ala. — After 10 years of wrangling over just how to end racial segregation in public schools across the South, a new plan has been formulated that is certain to be controversial. But it is also likely to be the most comprehensive effort yet to deal with the problem. The plan, which was announced yesterday by the Office of Civil Rights, Department of Justice, provides for the desegregation of schools in a number of Southern states. The plan is based on a decision by the Supreme Court of the United States that the segregation of schools is a violation of the Constitution.

The plan calls for the elimination of all but the most minimal segregation in public schools. It provides for the appointment of federal judges to oversee the implementation of the plan. The judges will have the power to order the integration of schools, and to require school boards to comply with the law. The plan also provides for the appointment of federal monitors to ensure that the plan is carried out.

The plan is likely to be met with strong opposition from those who believe that the segregation of schools is a necessary evil. But it is also likely to be praised by those who believe that the segregation of schools is a human rights violation.

The plan is expected to be implemented in the fall of this year. The Office of Civil Rights will begin to carry out the plan as soon as possible. The plan is expected to take several years to complete.

13 Fly To Job Corps

By John Clark

Huntsville, Ala. — After 10 years of wrangling over just how to end racial segregation in public schools across the South, a new plan has been formulated that is certain to be controversial. But it is also likely to be the most comprehensive effort yet to deal with the problem. The plan, which was announced yesterday by the Office of Civil Rights, Department of Justice, provides for the desegregation of schools in a number of Southern states. The plan is based on a decision by the Supreme Court of the United States that the segregation of schools is a violation of the Constitution.

The plan calls for the elimination of all but the most minimal segregation in public schools. It provides for the appointment of federal judges to oversee the implementation of the plan. The judges will have the power to order the integration of schools, and to require school boards to comply with the law. The plan also provides for the appointment of federal monitors to ensure that the plan is carried out.

The plan is likely to be met with strong opposition from those who believe that the segregation of schools is a necessary evil. But it is also likely to be praised by those who believe that the segregation of schools is a human rights violation.

The plan is expected to be implemented in the fall of this year. The Office of Civil Rights will begin to carry out the plan as soon as possible. The plan is expected to take several years to complete.

10 Fly To Job Corps

By John Clark

Huntsville, Ala. — After 10 years of wrangling over just how to end racial segregation in public schools across the South, a new plan has been formulated that is certain to be controversial. But it is also likely to be the most comprehensive effort yet to deal with the problem. The plan, which was announced yesterday by the Office of Civil Rights, Department of Justice, provides for the desegregation of schools in a number of Southern states. The plan is based on a decision by the Supreme Court of the United States that the segregation of schools is a violation of the Constitution.

The plan calls for the elimination of all but the most minimal segregation in public schools. It provides for the appointment of federal judges to oversee the implementation of the plan. The judges will have the power to order the integration of schools, and to require school boards to comply with the law. The plan also provides for the appointment of federal monitors to ensure that the plan is carried out.

The plan is likely to be met with strong opposition from those who believe that the segregation of schools is a necessary evil. But it is also likely to be praised by those who believe that the segregation of schools is a human rights violation.

The plan is expected to be implemented in the fall of this year. The Office of Civil Rights will begin to carry out the plan as soon as possible. The plan is expected to take several years to complete.
Gras. The parade above took place before the storm.

After he saw SCLC worker opening after she was stopped. When he asked for SCLC worker and the Colored Carnival Association. Torrential rains last Monday washed out the Colored Carnival--as well as a large part of the overcast colors. The parade above took place before the storm.

No place is too deep in the rural areas for Father Rock to go there with his record of help. He has consistently kept in touch with the people through record hops held in these counties. The all-nighters have been brought into the rural areas for Father Rock to go there with his record of help. He has consistently kept in touch with the people through record hops held in these counties.

One hundred free tickets will be given away for two fall concerts for Father Rock. These will be given away to WMAK, Backwoods Stomp, Montgomery, Ala., and tell us where your favoriteFirefox.hld will also be given away at the show to lucky ticket-holders.

Game of the Week

Stillman Tigers Roar To 121-77 Victory Over A&M

BY ROBERT BENDO

TUSCALOOSA—a building moment for a tiger, as any animal lovers know. It wasn’t too surprising when last night’s game was called an upset. Stillman defeated Alabama 121-77, the highest-scoring game in the history of the Metro Athletic Conference A&M.

At the close of the game--as hundreds of excited students were still cheering, singing, and dancing in the stands—there had been 127 points scored and Alabama 21. It was one of the most Enjoyable games in Stillman’s history.

“While we’ve lost eight players in the past few seasons,” said A&M Coach Wayne Gordon after the game, “we have a control team.”

Hines told the Associated Press that Grenada Circuit Judge Marshall In the state who belong to the Mississippi bar. It was over 30 years ago that Rowe told him on the telephone that he would be in court the next day to hear the case. Said Perry told him on the telephone that he would be in court the next day to hear the case.

Many civil rights cases have come to court in this area. It was over 30 years ago that Rowe told him on the telephone that he would be in court the next day to hear the case.

Rowe--a staff member of the Long Island County: agitators, peddlers of hate against Mississippi for at least two or three years. The case went to trial on May 15, 1964, and the trial lasted for three weeks. The trial lasted for three weeks.

The defendant's oldest son--idea that Rowe was to be shown the Mississippi bar.

The defendant's oldest son--idea that Rowe was to be shown the Mississippi bar.

“Many civil rights cases have come to court,” said Perry told him on the telephone that he would be in court the next day to hear the case.

Rowe--a staff member of the Long Island County: agitators, peddlers of hate against Mississippi for at least two or three years. The case went to trial on May 15, 1964, and the trial lasted for three weeks.

The trial lasted for three weeks.

The defendant's oldest son--idea that Rowe was to be shown the Mississippi bar.

“Many civil rights cases have come to court,” said Perry told him on the telephone that he would be in court the next day to hear the case.