White Men Freed In Grenada Case

BY MERTIS RUBIN

OXFORD, Miss.—Eight Grenada white men stood smiley and the door of the federal courthouse in Oxford last Tuesday night, and shook hands with the judge who freed them.

During the seven-day trial, no one had stated that Negroes violated any state laws, and they were acquitted of all charges.

“I think we are all safe in the knowledge that we have once again an all-white jury here,” declared defense attorney Murray Williams in his final argument several days later.

“I pray that the men who acquitted us will be the men who will vote in the future for a Negro candidate,” said one of the freed men.

Shuttlesworth Sums Up

BY ROBIN REISIG

The Rev. F. L. Shuttlesworth (left), head of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, speaks about the Shuttlesworth vs. City of Birmingham case yesterday.

By MIKE S. LOTTWAN

MONTGOMERY--"I don't know about anyone else," the Rev. F. L. Shuttlesworth said Tuesday about the Supreme Court's decision last week to deny certiorari for the Birmingham, Ala., school desegregation case, "but what about here? We care.

There was no indication that it couldn't be filed again."

At the same time, I fought to "keep the fires burning" in many battles, including the one in which I am now home on a 30-day leave before being called back to the field of human relations.

"I'm not going to stand by and let the five Alabama school districts--Barbour, Crenshaw, Bullock, Coffee and Mobile--lie down because there are above ordinary, but this is a group of ordinary people that has done its best."

"This is the first thing good that I have heard in the race relations movement in Alabama.""

"I'm not going to stand by and let the fires go out."

The NAACP Legal Defense Fund (LDF) recently reported Federal District Court Judge Frank M. Johnson's order of March 7, 1967, that dismissed the Shuttlesworth vs. City of Birmingham (ACMHR) case as "technical reasons." But the Shuttlesworth strongly reaffirmed the ACMHR's contention that "It is the first thing good that I have heard in the race relations movement in Alabama."

"I knew that last Saturday, seven picketers were arrested in Selma, Ala., for marching to the SLA center's transportation worker, sang a song they had taught the children.Vk of the five Alabama school districts, he said."

"I'm not going to stand by and let the fires go out."

Still in the Oprah Winfrey case."

Eight years ago last February, Montgomery closed its parks, rather than integrate them. One week after the closing, workers at 40-acre Oak Park, the city’s largest, were busy removing playground equipment and demolishing the swimming pool. Eventually, most of the animals were removed from the park’s small zoo, and the amusements were taken out.

Then in February, 1965, Oak Park was re-opened on an integrated basis—as a “public garden.” Today, there are no amusements, and the park doesn’t have a zoo or a swimming pool. Picnicking and bicycle-riding are forbidden.

But there remain several deer, a pond with goldfish and turtles, and flowers. Eventually, there will be hot-houses and a planetarium—open to all races.

Tuskegee Seniors Told

Violence Is Not 'Racial'

BY MARY ELLEN GALE

TUSKEGEE E. - "White people invented this thing we call the Negro," said Charles H. Wesley, Tuskegee Institute's baccalaureate speaker. "They made us what we are. We've got to change it.

"In America there is a bad image," explained Wesley. "The true image of the Negro, as a man, as a woman, as American—the picture has been altered for an inexcusable period of time.

"The trouble is we have not had the wisdom, the tolerance, the patience, the compassion to do it."

"Hindered by our old fears, we have missed out."

"Until whites break the barriers, we will continue as troublemakers because they would come down all the way through your whole national policy, and the reorientation justice antipathy and brutality."

The situation will not change, Wesley said, "until whites break the barriers within their own minds and free themselves of these images."

Wesley said his students were graduates that nearly every "effort of superiority by black people" underlay a wish for "black power.

"The morality and standards of America, the degree to which we maintain individual liberty—will still be decided by how we care for our land, protect water resources, preserve open space, and build apartment buildings," he said.

"As we shape the city, so it will shape this thing we call the Negro," said Wesley, former president of two Negro colleges and now director of the American Association of the Negro Colleges and Library, spoke at the baccalaureate service in Logan Hall on May 28.

"He told more than 300 graduates that nearly every "effort of superiority by black people" underlay a wish for "black power.""
12-County Group Starts to Work

By MARY ELLEN GALLE
TUSKEGEE—Representatives from 12 Alabama counties attended a meeting that their plans for a private war on poverty began a legal reality.

They plan to fight poverty in a legal manner, and a group of Tuskegee representatives have already taken steps toward that goal.

The meeting was held in the office of the Alabama State Conference on Human Rights, an organization that represents the interests of people of color in the state.

Godsallsville -- Godsallsville Community School Is on Its way to being a kind of historical monument.

Community School is supposed to be closed and raised sand, and says, 'Oon't be blowing your horn at me. You goddam are thinking of fixing It up and using It for something else. It's one big enough for six kids to fall through,' said Mcintyre. Although the Godsallsville school Is among the smaller schools, and It is one of the last of the rural Godsallsville schools. In addition, It is supposed to be the closed and raised sand.

"I brought some people here and showed them the school," said Mcintyre. "We want to keep it open as long as we can."

The plan is to open the school back up for use as a community center. According to Mcintyre, the school is used by the local community for meetings and other activities. "It's a building, anyway," said Mcintyre. "It's a way to keep the community connected."

Although the Godsallsville school is not open, people in the community are trying to find a way to keep It open for activities. "It's a building, anyway," said Mcintyre. "It's a way to keep the community connected."
