Meridian, Miss.—Two white Mississippi sheriffs have been indicted by a federal grand jury here on charges of plotting and carrying out the execution of Andrew Goodman, James Chaney, and Michael Schwerner of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee.

In a side room of the Federal Courthouse here yesterday, 19-year-old Robert Williamキン had to be restrained by the bailiff as he appeared in court for the second time in as many days. Mr. Kin, a local white youth, was one of three men arrested two weeks ago after a search of the Kin home in this community. A fourth man, 20-year-old David Houser and Mrs. Sally Houser, were arrested last Saturday. The four, all white, were indicted by a federal grand jury here today.

The indictments charge that on June 21, 1964, a group of white people, including four Negroes, came to the Kin home in this community for the purpose of planning and carrying out the execution of the three civil rights leaders, law officers, and news­men who were killed two weeks ago in Tallahatchie County.

A grand jury, headed by U.S. District Judge Frank Johnson, also indicted two policemen and a dog­handler for the murder.

Two of the men in the four-person group were arrested here Friday as they tried to leave the area.

In the two-week trial, the U.S. government accused the defendants of plotting and carrying out the execution of the three civil rights workers.

The indicted men: Robert William Kin, 19; David Michael Houser, 20; and Mrs. Sally Houser, 27.

Robert William Kin is a local white youth who had been seen with two of the missing men before their disappearance. He is said to have been asked to help the group in addition to the others.

David Michael Houser is a 20-year-old Negro who was known to the Kin group. He was last seen two weeks ago when the group left his home.

Mrs. Sally Houser is a 27-year-old white woman who was last seen with two of the missing men when they left her home two weeks ago.

In the two-week trial, the U.S. government accused the defendants of plotting and carrying out the execution of the three civil rights workers.

Andrew Goodman, and James Chaney, were shot, and civil rights leaders, law officers, and news­men who were killed two weeks ago in Tallahatchie County.

Judge John H. Johnson, Jr., who was named to the bench Tuesday by President Johnson, denied the request for a delay.

In the two-week trial, the U.S. government accused the defendants of plotting and carrying out the execution of the three civil rights workers.

...首饰 should be like the Jews...
Plan for Dallas

Homan Trial Move Denied

Mobile People Complain About Anti-Poverty Jobs

Says New Tuskegee Councilman
'I'm the Working Man's Friend'
Not Quite, but Almost
Two of Everything

Dothan, Ala.—This year’s National Peanut Festival in Dothan was advertised as the 24th annual celebration. But there have been many more festivals than that, if you consider that Dothan’s Negro community sponsors its own events—patterned after the all-white affairs, but not listed on the official program.

On Oct. 9, James Hall and Mrs. L. Ruth Jackson were chosen Dothan Man and Woman of the Year at a banquet at the Negro Elks Club, with President Harris, president of the Alabama State Teachers Association, as the featured speaker. On Oct. 17, police sergeant Ralph McCord and Mrs. Bob Coats were chosen Dothan Man and Woman of the Year in a ceremony at the Houston Hotel, with Harry Phillips, president of Auburn University, as featured speaker.

And as it went, with but a few exceptions. Miss Patricia Ann Martin was chosen Miss Bronze Peanut at the City Auditorium Oct. 17, and Miss Donna Harris was chosen national 1967 Peanut Queen at the Houston County Fair Center Oct. 20. Bob Knight was named Farmer of the Year at a dinner in the Elks Club Oct. 17, which white Farmer of the Year was honored, Roger Combs won the Soap Box Derby held Oct. 20 on E. Newton St. (CONTINUED ON PAGE SIX, Col. 4)
According to the program's director, Mrs. Elizabeth Rice, more than three-quarters of the Head Start children are from families which have been evicted from their homes. They can stay in the program for two years, Mrs. Rice explained, and some children have been in the classes for four years. Children from families which have been evicted from their homes, four-tenths of whom live on the land, and pay from four-tenths of a month for house rent, and get a little income from farming or selling livestock.

In 1965, the club applied successfully for a building grant, and recently received a grant for a summer program. Mrs. Rice said the children and their parents were enthusiastic about the classes, that the club's applications for a junior-kindergarten program wasn't approved until last May.

"At the beginning, we had quite a problem," said Mrs. Rice, "we had to hold classes three days a week. There were about 300 parents and children involved. We had moved our classes out of the school and into the school system," Mrs. Rice explained.

But the program hasn't had any trouble getting people because of the importance of the job, and the fact that it helps them so much, Mrs. Rice explained.

The program hasn't had any trouble getting people because of the importance of the job, and the fact that it helps them so much, Mrs. Rice explained.

For example, one of the first Head Start classes was moved to the land and paid from families which had been evicted from their homes, four-tenths of whom live on the land, and pay from four-tenths of a month for house rent, and get a little income from farming or selling livestock.

In 1965, the club applied successfully for a building grant, and recently received a grant for a summer program. Mrs. Rice said the children and their parents were enthusiastic about the classes, that the club's applications for a junior-kindergarten program wasn't approved until last May.

"At the beginning, we had quite a problem," said Mrs. Rice, "we had to hold classes three days a week. There were about 300 parents and children involved. We had moved our classes out of the school and into the school system," Mrs. Rice explained.

But the program hasn't had any trouble getting people because of the importance of the job, and the fact that it helps them so much, Mrs. Rice explained.

"At the beginning, we had quite a problem," said Mrs. Rice, "we had to hold classes three days a week. There were about 300 parents and children involved. We had moved our classes out of the school and into the school system," Mrs. Rice explained.

But the program hasn't had any trouble getting people because of the importance of the job, and the fact that it helps them so much, Mrs. Rice explained.
Ladies Form Co-Op In Greene, Hale Counties

By ANDREW J. WARD

GREENVILLE, Ala. — Four members of the Greene County Junior Woman's Club and 17 members of the Hale County Young Women's Club have joined together to form a new organization, the Southern Charmers. The group plans to hold meetings每月 to discuss various topics of interest to women.

The organization was formed after a meeting convened by the Greene County Junior Woman's Club and the Hale County Young Women's Club. The meeting was held on Thursday, April 28, and was attended by representatives from both counties.

The Southern Charmers plan to hold meetings每月 to discuss various topics of interest to women, such as fashion, beauty, and cooking. The group also plans to hold social events, such as tea parties and potlucks.

The organization is open to all women who wish to join. For more information, please contact the Greene County Junior Woman's Club or the Hale County Young Women's Club. Contact information can be found on their respective websites.

---

REGAL CAFE
The Best Food in Town
DINNER-$6.50

Jackson & Grove Sts., Montgomery, Ala.

Cody's Shine Parlor
The Best Shines in Town
ENTERTAINMENT

755 Holt St., Montgomery, Ala.

---

‘Johnson or Johnson’ in 1968

By PETER J. MCMAHON

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — There is just one woman in each state who is named ‘Johnson’ for the 1968 presidential election, and that woman is a Democrat. ‘Johnson is the last name of the candidate, who is not yet available as a candidate.’

‘I don’t care who is up front (Lemon) and Mitchell. I am for fun, and I hope you are, too.’

Advisers at the Washington bureau of the AP were pleased that the story ran in the Montgomery Advertiser, a key publication in the state's black community. ‘We called to make sure the AP has a solid story, and it did,’ the editor said.

‘People who are in Montgomery, they want to feel like they are part of the process.’
A Close Battle In Greensboro
BY ANDREW J. BOYD
GREENSBORO, Ala.— Tuskegee Institute high school didn't secure its sec­ ond straight Chickasaw County Tournament title by attacking USA County School, the long-time enemy.

The Halton County Trojans were the third school the Tuskegee Institute director of athletics has been able to keep out of the Chickasaw title game this season. Tuskegee has taken the state tournament title for the past three years.

The game was the final of a three-game series between Tuskegee and Halton, which met for the first time in the Chickasaw title game this season. Tuskegee won the first game of the series 67-66, Halton won the second game 51-44, and Tuskegee won the third game 56-35.

Although Tuskegee had the upper hand in the series, the Halton County Trojans had the upper hand in the Chickasaw title game.

The Tuskegee Institute director of athletics has been able to keep Halton County out of the Chickasaw title game for the past three years.

The Halton County Trojans had the upper hand in the Chickasaw title game this season. Tuskegee has taken the state tournament title for the past three years.

The game was the final of a three-game series between Tuskegee and Halton, which met for the first time in the Chickasaw title game this season. Tuskegee won the first game of the series 67-66, Halton won the second game 51-44, and Tuskegee won the third game 56-35.

Although Tuskegee had the upper hand in the series, the Halton County Trojans had the upper hand in the Chickasaw title game.

The Tuskegee Institute director of athletics has been able to keep Halton County out of the Chickasaw title game for the past three years.