Workers Win in Memphis Strike

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—The Memphis garbage strike —a walkout of 13,000 sanitation workers—ended yesterday when the city council meeting last Tuesday, to demand immediate action on a list of grievances.

Mayor Allen C. Thompson, Commissioner Clark Forrest and Derivial J. Whitaker, commissioner of public works, said no further discussion or action was necessary on the list of grievances presented to them.

"We have decided we won't go back to any further," they said. "We don't believe we will for the city council and the garbage company to take the pressure off us."

The garbage workers plan to sit and demand improvements in working conditions and pay.

The mayor, who had been asked if the city would consider moving the garbage company to a new site, said: "I don't think it's the answer to any of the problems we have."
Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., 1929-1968

Were You There When They Laid Him in the Tomb?

Photos by Jim Peppler
Tuscaloosa Nursery Finds a New Home

At Schools in Mississippi and Alabama

New Problems, New Solutions

Lunches for Vicksburg Children Are 'Hauled Like Slop for Pigs'

Birmingham Prepares to Close Sandusky School—and Outhouse

By Emily Israel

By BobLASHER

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—Sandusky Children's Home School is the only school in Birmingham with window door toilets. It is one of three schools which have no lunchrooms or kitchen. Sandusky also has the smallest staff of any school in Birmingham. The teachers teach six and seven grades a day, and the children need help, said Dr. James B. Smith, superintendent.

Parents say the new program had the following results:

- The classes also read daily newspapers: The girl is one of 80 Druid High School students participating in special reading. Parents say the new program had the following results:

- A ninth-grade youth said he likes this program: 'I've read a lot this year, and I've enjoyed it. It's been very helpful to me.'

- The parents liked the nursery, even though it was not very large: 'I think the children are getting a good education. I'm happy with the way they are doing.'

- The parents said they were surprised: 'We were surprised when the Birmingham Board of Education announced that the school will close down for good at the end of the school year.'

- There are no very many children in the Sandusky nursery: 'I heard about the problems of the school board, and I'm sorry.'

- The parents also said they were happy: 'It's going to be better for all concerned.'

- The parents also said they were happy: 'I'm going to stick!'

The program uses audio-visual aids to improve the students' rate and comprehension. More information can be found at the following web address:

[Website Link]

McCARTHY, Miss.—Worried parents of children who attend the "Satellite Feeding" program at Sandusky Elementary School have been waiting for improvements to be made in the cafeteria. The program has been in operation since 1963, and it has been on the "Satellite Feeding" list for several years.

The program was started by the Sandusky Elementary School, which is located in the city of Birmingham. It was the only one of its kind in the state of Alabama. In 1963, the program was expanded to include five other schools.

The program is funded by the federal government, and it is administered by the city of Birmingham. The program provides meals for children who do not have access to a school lunch program.

The program is administered by the city of Birmingham, and it is funded by the federal government. The program provides meals for children who do not have access to a school lunch program.

The program is funded by the federal government, and it is administered by the city of Birmingham. The program provides meals for children who do not have access to a school lunch program.

The program is administered by the city of Birmingham, and it is funded by the federal government. The program provides meals for children who do not have access to a school lunch program.

The program is funded by the federal government, and it is administered by the city of Birmingham. The program provides meals for children who do not have access to a school lunch program.

The program is administered by the city of Birmingham, and it is funded by the federal government. The program provides meals for children who do not have access to a school lunch program.

The program is funded by the federal government, and it is administered by the city of Birmingham. The program provides meals for children who do not have access to a school lunch program.

The program is administered by the city of Birmingham, and it is funded by the federal government. The program provides meals for children who do not have access to a school lunch program.

The program is funded by the federal government, and it is administered by the city of Birmingham. The program provides meals for children who do not have access to a school lunch program.

The program is administered by the city of Birmingham, and it is funded by the federal government. The program provides meals for children who do not have access to a school lunch program.

The program is funded by the federal government, and it is administered by the city of Birmingham. The program provides meals for children who do not have access to a school lunch program.

The program is administered by the city of Birmingham, and it is funded by the federal government. The program provides meals for children who do not have access to a school lunch program.

The program is funded by the federal government, and it is administered by the city of Birmingham. The program provides meals for children who do not have access to a school lunch program.

The program is administered by the city of Birmingham, and it is funded by the federal government. The program provides meals for children who do not have access to a school lunch program.

The program is funded by the federal government, and it is administered by the city of Birmingham. The program provides meals for children who do not have access to a school lunch program.

The program is administered by the city of Birmingham, and it is funded by the federal government. The program provides meals for children who do not have access to a school lunch program.

The program is funded by the federal government, and it is administered by the city of Birmingham. The program provides meals for children who do not have access to a school lunch program.

The program is administered by the city of Birmingham, and it is funded by the federal government. The program provides meals for children who do not have access to a school lunch program.
President, SNC Urges Different Courses

Join Together—Or Retiate?

WASHINGTON, D.C. — President John F. Kennedy's assassination was a blow against the ‘Christian politics’ in the world, a blow against the Christian passion to work together. But his death was not the end. It was the beginning of a new era.

The voice that together, and together, has raised the voice to the death of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. is a voice of the people. It is a voice that, we believe, still has the power to change the world. It is a voice that, we believe, still has the power to change us.

We have been asked to think about the ethical implications of this war. We have been asked to think about the moral implications of this war. We have been asked to think about the political implications of this war. We have been asked to think about the spiritual implications of this war.

But we cannot dodge the question. The question is this: How can we, as a people, as a nation, as a world, work together to end this war?

We have been asked to think about the ethical implications of this war. We have been asked to think about the moral implications of this war. We have been asked to think about the political implications of this war. We have been asked to think about the spiritual implications of this war.

But we cannot dodge the question. The question is this: How can we, as a people, as a nation, as a world, work together to end this war?

We have been asked to think about the ethical implications of this war. We have been asked to think about the moral implications of this war. We have been asked to think about the political implications of this war. We have been asked to think about the spiritual implications of this war.

But we cannot dodge the question. The question is this: How can we, as a people, as a nation, as a world, work together to end this war?

We have been asked to think about the ethical implications of this war. We have been asked to think about the moral implications of this war. We have been asked to think about the political implications of this war. We have been asked to think about the spiritual implications of this war.

But we cannot dodge the question. The question is this: How can we, as a people, as a nation, as a world, work together to end this war?

We have been asked to think about the ethical implications of this war. We have been asked to think about the moral implications of this war. We have been asked to think about the political implications of this war. We have been asked to think about the spiritual implications of this war.

But we cannot dodge the question. The question is this: How can we, as a people, as a nation, as a world, work together to end this war?
Were you there when they laid him in the tomb?
Oh, --------- sometimes it causes me to tremble, tremble, tremble, Were you there when they laid him in the tomb?

Faith of our fathers! we will love Both friend and foe in all our strife:
And preach thee, too, as love knows how, By kindly deeds and virtuous life.
Faith of our fathers, holy faith! We will be true to thee till death.

Precious Lord, take my hand, Lead me on, help me stand.
I am tired, I am weak, I am worn.
Through the storm, through the night,
Lead me on to the light.
Take my hand, Precious Lord, lead me on.
By Mary Ellen Gable

Montgomery, Ala.--The Alabama State Teachers Association has attacked the state's system of dual schools.

The ASTA said, "It has given no such indication. The history and present nature of the programs of the University of Alabama College of Education in state colleges has been--until recently--the same.

"Indeed, the very impetus for perpetuating, indeed further entrenching, this dual system," the ASTA argued last week, "is Negro business in order to continue to give our people jobs.

"If we learn to love one another, we may become economically strong, we must unite."

"The only thing that our people know to do is that which is sanctioned by the preachers and the school teachers are not telling them to come in and give us more business in order to give our kids more hope in life.

"This seems to be all because we do not have enough love for God, The poor is for the poor and the rich is for the rich.

"If God is in our yesterdays, we must be willing to do anything to help our people who are trying to do something constructive."