Take Away the Guns

With the recent assassinations of the Rev. Martin Luther King, Jr., and Senator Robert F. Kennedy, the national conscience is stirred by a moral imperative and the renewed recollection of the death of President John F. Kennedy. Both were assassinated, and in both, the American sense of what purports to be the ‘moral fabric of totality and destruction....’ If any of these things happen, then we have a moral responsibility to order our lives...." In the wake of these tragedies, the nation is faced with the choice of how to respond to the grief and anger.

There is no sense in saying what has been said after each of these events. It is clear that the government must act to prevent such tragedies from happening again. The government must have the authority and the means to prevent such tragedies.

One must wonder why the government is not doing more to prevent such tragedies. The government has the power and the means to prevent such tragedies. It is clear that the government must act to prevent such tragedies.

Two months ago, the government took a step in the right direction by passing a law that limits the sale of guns to those who have been convicted of a violent crime. This law is a step in the right direction, but it is not enough. The government must take a more active role in preventing such tragedies.

The government has the power and the means to prevent such tragedies. It is clear that the government must act to prevent such tragedies.

Abernathy Urges Alabama State Graduates

‘Make a Career of Protest’

BY MARY ELLEN GALE

TUSKEGEE, Ala. — A former president of Tuskegee Institute spoke out in favor of student protest in the United States at commencement exercises here yesterday.

"We are having what has been described as the most successful revolution against the caste system in history," said Frederick K. Wilkins, president of Wilberforce University, Ohio, following the commencement address delivered by the Rev. Ralph Abernathy, Montgomery, Ala.

"We unabashedly call it revolution because we know it is necessary to correct a gross injustice," he said, "and we are very pleased that you will consider the profession of social protest. You are needed there."

The response to Abernathy's plea seemed to be less than overwhelming. Student action has produced "spectacular economic gains for the poor" in the United States, he said, but most of the credit is going to the "hard-working whites" who are "too proud and too scared" to join the struggle.
Who Hired All the Teachers?

BY MAE ELLEN GALE

GREENWOOD, Ala. -- More than 11,000 teachers in Alabama were hired this week, the state's education commissioner said, as the state's schools prepared for the start of the school year.

The commissioner, Mary Smith, said that the state's schools were preparing for the start of the school year.

He said that the teachers were hired as part of a plan to increase the state's education budget.

Smith said that the state had set aside $1 billion to hire teachers, and that the state would use that money to hire 11,000 teachers.

Smith said that the plan was designed to help the state's schools meet the needs of its students.

He said that the state had already hired 10,000 teachers, and that the remaining 1,000 would be hired over the next few weeks.

Smith said that the state was also increasing its education budget, and that it would use the extra money to hire more teachers.

He said that the state was committed to improving the quality of education in Alabama, and that the new teachers would help to achieve that goal.

Smith said that the state was also working to improve the state's schools, and that it was making progress in that area.

He said that the state was committed to providing high-quality education for all students, and that it was taking steps to ensure that every student had access to a good education.
