Mississippi Challenge: Long Ride, Then Disappearance in Washington

Govt., GEORGE WALLACE

Negroes Near Vote Majorities

Federal Jury in Mobile Considers Rights Cases

BY DOROTHY GATHRIGHT

Negros near Vote Majorities

George Hamper Registration, Blasts Supreme Court, Congress

BY MICHAEL S. LOTTMAN

Montgomery—Last week was big for Gov.

George Wallace.

Earlier, he delivered a bombastic attack on the federal government over a言论 in an opening of the Alabama legislature's special session. At the governor's direction, the state went to court, and obtained a Temporary restraining order from federal judges on the basis of constitutional objections to the so-called "Bible program." The program, Mr. Wallace said, was designed to "stifle" the freedoms of dissenters.

The governor received a substantial amount of support from the Alabama legislature, which he has been trying to "stifle." The legislature, which is controlled by the Democratic party, has been adopting a series of laws that are designed to "stifle" the freedoms of dissenters.

The governor received a substantial amount of support from the Alabama legislature, which he has been trying to "stifle." The legislature, which is controlled by the Democratic party, has been adopting a series of laws that are designed to "stifle" the freedoms of dissenters.

The governor received a substantial amount of support from the Alabama legislature, which he has been trying to "stifle." The legislature, which is controlled by the Democratic party, has been adopting a series of laws that are designed to "stifle" the freedoms of dissenters.
Southern Representatives Fight Home Rule Proposal for Capital

By Laura Godfrey

WASHINGTON — Members of Washington may soon win an important voting victory.

When a Johnson administration triumped last week, the District of Columbia House of Representatives could not elect a mayor, a council school board, or even a council to conduct the affairs of the city.

The nation’s capital is currently governed by two congressional committees and a series of appointed officials. Its voters rate only for a governor-vice-president. They do not elect any senators, congressmen or city officials.

Bills to grant District of Columbia residents the right to elect their own local government, have been passed several times in the Senate, but never in the House.

The major stumbling block in the House has been the District’s house, which has always held a home rule bill from coming to the floor for a vote.

This year, however, a rarely used tactic will bring the bill passed by the Senate to the House floor. A majority of the House will try to vote a 355-continuous-name amendment on the bill. This will enable the bill to come to the floor, where voting begins, to be considered separately.

There must be a two-week waiting period before the first bill can be considered. Then an official Senate committee of home rules cannot consider the bill until the day on which it is introduced, unless it is to consider a bill on the same topic. The home rule bill is pending before a different committee. These two committees must be the same.

Another reason that is a number of congressmen are trying to put the home rule bill by action against the best interests of the nation.

Others consider home rule a violation of the Constitution’s exclusive control over the federal government, and the country’s constitutional system. Others say the bill was not to apply to local governments.

The issues of the bill is that the bill was not approved by the Senate or House, and that the bill is not to apply to local government.

NAACP Meets In Birmingham

By James Smith

The NAACP has announced that it will not get the political victory over civil rights activities, the organization must be held.

The NAACP has announced its decision, which has promised the entire District.

There are several reasons why home rule has been such a fight in the last year. They have been passed several times in the Senate, but never in the House.

The NAACP has announced its decision, which has promised the entire District.

There are several reasons why home rule has been such a fight in the last year. They have been passed several times in the Senate, but never in the House.

The NAACP has announced its decision, which has promised the entire District.

There are several reasons why home rule has been such a fight in the last year. They have been passed several times in the Senate, but never in the House.

The NAACP has announced its decision, which has promised the entire District.

There are several reasons why home rule has been such a fight in the last year. They have been passed several times in the Senate, but never in the House.

The NAACP has announced its decision, which has promised the entire District.

There are several reasons why home rule has been such a fight in the last year. They have been passed several times in the Senate, but never in the House.

The NAACP has announced its decision, which has promised the entire District.

There are several reasons why home rule has been such a fight in the last year. They have been passed several times in the Senate, but never in the House.

The NAACP has announced its decision, which has promised the entire District.

There are several reasons why home rule has been such a fight in the last year. They have been passed several times in the Senate, but never in the House.

The NAACP has announced its decision, which has promised the entire District.

There are several reasons why home rule has been such a fight in the last year. They have been passed several times in the Senate, but never in the House.

The NAACP has announced its decision, which has promised the entire District.

There are several reasons why home rule has been such a fight in the last year. They have been passed several times in the Senate, but never in the House.

The NAACP has announced its decision, which has promised the entire District.

There are several reasons why home rule has been such a fight in the last year. They have been passed several times in the Senate, but never in the House.

The NAACP has announced its decision, which has promised the entire District.

There are several reasons why home rule has been such a fight in the last year. They have been passed several times in the Senate, but never in the House.

The NAACP has announced its decision, which has promised the entire District.

There are several reasons why home rule has been such a fight in the last year. They have been passed several times in the Senate, but never in the House.

The NAACP has announced its decision, which has promised the entire District.

There are several reasons why home rule has been such a fight in the last year. They have been passed several times in the Senate, but never in the House.

The NAACP has announced its decision, which has promised the entire District.

There are several reasons why home rule has been such a fight in the last year. They have been passed several times in the Senate, but never in the House.
MOBILE--When the wind blows south in Mobile, you can smell the ocean. And you know the ocean must be near when you're standing downtown and notice a 400-foot ship slipping by just two blocks away or meet a group of men wearing strange clothes and speaking an even stranger language.

These ships and their crews dock along the riverfront to unload cargoes from all over the world and then to reload for the return voyage. Almost 2,000 transport ships enter the port of Mobile every year. Last year, they carried over 20,000,000 tons of cargo.

The little fishing boats based in Mobile don't bring in nearly as many tons. But this doesn't matter if you just want some fresh shrimp for dinner. You can go down to the docks and buy a bagful for only 39 cents a pound.

Photographs by David R. Underhill

Along the Mobile Docks
E.D. NIXON — "I AIN'T DONE ANYTHING WORTHWHILE IN THE LAST SIX YEARS"

JACKSON (Miss.)—First they were slaves. Then, for a century they were sharecroppers and domestic workers. But today in several parts of Mississippi Negroes are declaring their economic emancipation from whites and are banding together to go into business for themselves.

The season: cooperatives, organizations of people who agree to work, buy or sell together so as to be stronger as a group than they could be alone.

The reason: "The next people to lose that cooperative spirit," said E.D. Nixon, "are the Negroes. After you work to build a cooperative, it's better to stay with it颞 than end up with no man and no work."

The cooperatives that are popping up in Mississippi grew out of the civil rights movement that has seen its share of co-ops. Nixon, a leader in civil rights. Today he devotes his time to "co-ops" or from civil rights workers who came several years ago to help people set up co-ops.

"Almost everything I did that was legal and peaceful was foiled by law enforcement and my own friends failed me," Nixon said. "My friends, the Negroes, all became enemies of the government.

"I thought we should have someone who was known by all the people. I then offered to go to the local man, 10 cents a pound for the things they were doing for the people, to help them get back."

Like most co-ops, the sewing firm rests on the principle that each member has only one vote, no matter how many shares he owns. (This is in contrast to a regular corporation, which has a vote for each dollar's worth of stock a member holds.)

"We wanted to get people out of white people's control. I had a job working with a lawyer, and I said I had enough of that," Nixon said.

"When the leaders of the Montgomery NAACP asked E.D. Nixon to form a new organization, the Montgomery Improvement Association, I said, 'I am a lawyer. I can't do anything else.'"

"I thought I should have someone who was known by all the people. I then offered to go to the local man, 10 cents a pound for the things they were doing for the people, to help them get back."

Like most co-ops, the sewing firm rests on the principle that each member has only one vote, no matter how many shares he owns. (This is in contrast to a regular corporation, which has a vote for each dollar's worth of stock a member holds.)

"We wanted to get people out of white people's control. I had a job working with a lawyer, and I said I had enough of that," Nixon said.

"When the leaders of the Montgomery NAACP asked E.D. Nixon to form a new organization, the Montgomery Improvement Association, I said, 'I am a lawyer. I can't do anything else.'"

"I thought I should have someone who was known by all the people. I then offered to go to the local man, 10 cents a pound for the things they were doing for the people, to help them get back."

Like most co-ops, the sewing firm rests on the principle that each member has only one vote, no matter how many shares he owns. (This is in contrast to a regular corporation, which has a vote for each dollar's worth of stock a member holds.)

"We wanted to get people out of white people's control. I had a job working with a lawyer, and I said I had enough of that," Nixon said.

"When the leaders of the Montgomery NAACP asked E.D. Nixon to form a new organization, the Montgomery Improvement Association, I said, 'I am a lawyer. I can't do anything else.'"

"I thought I should have someone who was known by all the people. I then offered to go to the local man, 10 cents a pound for the things they were doing for the people, to help them get back."

Like most co-ops, the sewing firm rests on the principle that each member has only one vote, no matter how many shares he owns. (This is in contrast to a regular corporation, which has a vote for each dollar's worth of stock a member holds.)

"We wanted to get people out of white people's control. I had a job working with a lawyer, and I said I had enough of that," Nixon said.

"When the leaders of the Montgomery NAACP asked E.D. Nixon to form a new organization, the Montgomery Improvement Association, I said, 'I am a lawyer. I can't do anything else.'"

"I thought I should have someone who was known by all the people. I then offered to go to the local man, 10 cents a pound for the things they were doing for the people, to help them get back."

Like most co-ops, the sewing firm rests on the principle that each member has only one vote, no matter how many shares he owns. (This is in contrast to a regular corporation, which has a vote for each dollar's worth of stock a member holds.)

"We wanted to get people out of white people's control. I had a job working with a lawyer, and I said I had enough of that," Nixon said.

"When the leaders of the Montgomery NAACP asked E.D. Nixon to form a new organization, the Montgomery Improvement Association, I said, 'I am a lawyer. I can't do anything else.'"

"I thought I should have someone who was known by all the people. I then offered to go to the local man, 10 cents a pound for the things they were doing for the people, to help them get back."

Like most co-ops, the sewing firm rests on the principle that each member has only one vote, no matter how many shares he owns. (This is in contrast to a regular corporation, which has a vote for each dollar's worth of stock a member holds.)

"We wanted to get people out of white people's control. I had a job working with a lawyer, and I said I had enough of that," Nixon said.

"When the leaders of the Montgomery NAACP asked E.D. Nixon to form a new organization, the Montgomery Improvement Association, I said, 'I am a lawyer. I can't do anything else.'"

"I thought I should have someone who was known by all the people. I then offered to go to the local man, 10 cents a pound for the things they were doing for the people, to help them get back."

Like most co-ops, the sewing firm rests on the principle that each member has only one vote, no matter how many shares he owns. (This is in contrast to a regular corporation, which has a vote for each dollar's worth of stock a member holds.)

"We wanted to get people out of white people's control. I had a job working with a lawyer, and I said I had enough of that," Nixon said.

"When the leaders of the Montgomery NAACP asked E.D. Nixon to form a new organization, the Montgomery Improvement Association, I said, 'I am a lawyer. I can't do anything else.'"

"I thought I should have someone who was known by all the people. I then offered to go to the local man, 10 cents a pound for the things they were doing for the people, to help them get back."

Like most co-ops, the sewing firm rests on the principle that each member has only one vote, no matter how many shares he owns. (This is in contrast to a regular corporation, which has a vote for each dollar's worth of stock a member holds.)

"We wanted to get people out of white people's control. I had a job working with a lawyer, and I said I had enough of that," Nixon said.

"When the leaders of the Montgomery NAACP asked E.D. Nixon to form a new organization, the Montgomery Improvement Association, I said, 'I am a lawyer. I can't do anything else.'"

"I thought I should have someone who was known by all the people. I then offered to go to the local man, 10 cents a pound for the things they were doing for the people, to help them get back."

Like most co-ops, the sewing firm rests on the principle that each member has only one vote, no matter how many shares he owns. (This is in contrast to a regular corporation, which has a vote for each dollar's worth of stock a member holds.)

"We wanted to get people out of white people's control. I had a job working with a lawyer, and I said I had enough of that," Nixon said.

"When the leaders of the Montgomery NAACP asked E.D. Nixon to form a new organization, the Montgomery Improvement Association, I said, 'I am a lawyer. I can't do anything el
Arrests Follow Ball Game

BY DAVID TOLL AND HERB GORDON
MONTGOMERY--Defending Patriots of Selma scored early and held the freedom and the ball right back again, and Lanier received no points in the second half.

The crowd erupted the ball in the stands, as there was not enough to get the evening on the field. The Washington High School Yellow Jackets pocketed a 1-0 victory against Lanier High School.

In the line of scrimmage, the Yellow Jackets' opening drive moved down the field, as Lanier High School's defense held strong. The Yellow Jackets capitalized on their opportunity, taking the lead early in the first quarter.

The second half saw the Yellow Jackets assert their dominance, maintaining possession of the ball and controlling the pace of the game.

Mississippi

Challenge

Last Sunday the home team arrived in Corinth, Miss., and the two teams played on a Sunday afternoon. Tuskegee Institute, Ala., won the game.

The game was close throughout, with Tuskegee Institute taking the lead in the second quarter. However, the Yellow Jackets fought back to tie the score late in the game. Tuskegee Institute ultimately secured the victory, securing their spot in the championship game.

Selma Nips Lanier, 6-0; Carver, Booker T. Win

"You're one of the best players I've ever seen," said Lanier's coach after the game. "But today, we were just not able to get the ball into the end zone." Carver's coach added, "Our players showed a lot of heart today. We're looking forward to the next game.

To get the latest news and updates on your local sports teams, follow us on Twitter and like us on Facebook. Keep checking back for more updates on the upcoming games and tournaments in your area.

Get Your Free Score Report Now

P.S. You can also find us on Instagram and TikTok.
Wilkins, Others

Stress Intensive Program

The working committee of the Negro community is trying to work out a plan for better banking services for the Negroes. Dr. Wilson, the dean of the city's medical school, believes that a Negro-owned bank would be a great boon to the Negro community.

If you can balance your budget during the coming year, you can be sure of a better future for you and your family.

Widows Can Now Get Benefits

ORDER REAPPRCIATION FROM PAGE 26

Reappraisal

The revaluation of real estate in the city of Montgomery has been completed. The reappraisal is being carried out by the county tax assessor's office. The reappraisal will be based on the fair market value of the property.

As a result, the reappraisal will add to the tax rolls of property owners. The reappraisal will also help to ensure that all property is assessed fairly and accurately.

The revaluation is expected to be completed by the end of the year. The final appraisal will be available to the public at the county tax assessor's office.

The revaluation is expected to help property owners to better understand their property taxes. The revaluation will also help to ensure that the city's tax rolls are as accurate as possible.