Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

In Dr. Martin Luther King’s April 4, 1968, address to the nation, he stated: “I have a dream this is a dream worth which is the fulfillment of a century of struggle.”

But King’s dream was not fulfilled. The dream of equal rights for all, regardless of race, color, or creed, has not been achieved. We are still living in a world where discrimination and prejudice still exist.

We must work together to achieve the dream of equality for all. We must educate ourselves and our children about the importance of diversity and inclusion. We must stand up against racism and discrimination in all its forms.

We must continue to strive for the dream of King’s vision. We must work together to make it a reality.

Sincerely,
[Your Name]

Two Selma Seniors: Separate But Equal?

BY DAVID M. HODD

Selma—Jerry and Fred, two high school seniors in Selma, are very similar in a lot of ways. Both are good students, and both are interested in learning about African American history. It may seem surprising, but they say that they both have a great deal in common.

Although they have different last names, Jerry and Fred both attend the same high school, Selma High School. They are both members of the same club at school, the History Club. They are both interested in learning about African American history.

Jerry and Fred have a lot in common. They both work hard in school, and they both have a great deal of respect for their teachers. They both have a great deal of respect for the people in their community. They both have a great deal of respect for their parents.

At the Civil War, the Constitution held to every man to decide what to do. After a host of deficiencies, the people said they wanted to go to the ballot box. But this time, instead of the leaders, they went away and said, ‘we want to do the other way around.’

When President Lincoln used the key in his pocket to lock out a adviser, and all I want to do is move out of here. I know. At college, I’ve met some really great people. I don’t know what to do about the dying boycotted. After a heat wave, and all I want to do is move out of here. But this time, instead of the leaders, they went away and said, ‘we want to do the other way around.’

Moore's Changes Name To the 'Friendly Store'

BY JULIA BRADFORD

MONTGOMERY—This is a different store in a well-known neighborhood. The store it refers to is a Montgomery Negro store that Negroes prefered to call the Friendly Store a few weeks ago, claiming that a store clerk had slapped a customer. Mrs. R. C. Moore, the owner of the Friendly Store, has said he decided to change the name when he let people know the grocery store was Negro-owned.

"The customers at Moore's were Negro, but they were treated just as they were at any other stores," said Sen. H. B. Taylor, of Troy. The senator said he is pleased with the new name, which he said is a "good sign" of progress.

Another major problem that Alabamians face is the treatment of Negroes. There is a problem which the SOUTHERN COURIER will investigate and report on.

While the SOUTHERN COURIER tries to fulfill its responsibilities to its readers, we hope to provide accurate and up-to-date information about the problems and supply a means of communication for Negroes who are trying to solve them.

The SOUTHERN COURIER is independent of its advertisers, politicians, of dogs, or of any particular group or party. We will point out the evidences of discrimination wherever we find them, treating whites and Negroes alike.

There are certain basic principles in which this newspaper believes. We believe that all men are entitled to the equal protection of the laws and to equal justice in the courts. We believe that all men are entitled to equal educational opportunities. We believe that the Negro race is entitled to the same opportunities as the white race.

With these principles in mind, the SOUTHERN COURIER cannot ignore the fact that most of Alabama's Negroes are denied these basic equalities. Therefore we will publish information to help erase the prejudices of segregation and prejudice.

If you have ideas and criticisms that will help us provide a better newspaper, we are interested in hearing from you. We welcome your suggestions and contributions to the newspaper, experimental in many ways. And part of the experiment is to create a newspaper that responds to the needs of all people.
