THE SOUTHERN COURIER
STLC Meets in Memphis
May Be Poor'

BY HARRIET B. FLOWERS
MEMPHIS, Tenn. — The story of Memphis' fighting for freedom, peace and justice during the Civil Rights Movement. One of the most important events in the history of the American Freedom Movement was the ousting of the Democratic National Convention from Chicago in 1968. The convention was moved to Memphis, Tennessee, after the Democratic Party delegates voted to protest the city's treatment of civil rights issues.

The convention, which was held in July, was attended by thousands of people from around the country. The delegates included prominent politicians and civil rights leaders, such as Martin Luther King Jr., Malcolm X, and Coretta Scott King. The convention's main focus was on the issues of racism, poverty, and the role of the government in addressing these issues.

During the convention, there were several protests and demonstrations. One of the most well-known protests was the group of black students who walked out of all-black schools in the city to demand equal rights and opportunities. The students were met with violence from the police, who used tear gas and clubs to disperse them.

The convention was controversial, with many people feeling that it was a violation of the democratic process. However, it was also seen as a breakthrough for the civil rights movement, as it brought attention to the issues of racism and poverty that were affecting black people across the country.

The convention ended with the adoption of a new platform that called for an end to racism, poverty, and discrimination. The platform was widely viewed as a major victory for the civil rights movement, and it helped to set the stage for future efforts to fight for racial equality.

In conclusion, the Memphis Democratic National Convention was a pivotal event in the history of the civil rights movement. It brought attention to the issues of racism and poverty, and it helped to set the stage for future efforts to fight for racial equality. The convention's legacy lives on today, as we continue to work towards a more just and equal society.

SHELBY PROTESTORS WASH "RAID" BUDGE

BY ANTHONY R. MOORE
SHELBY, Miss.—Singing, dancing, playing the drums — mostly kids — refused to stop the protest.

The Shelby school board, as the students called it, was a place of pride and dignity, Clark said. "I remember being offhand about black history, about our seven students walked out of all-Negro back in his hand, and who sings the KMBSO Born?" Mountie Man Disappears

"Wonder If My Child Is Living"

BY JAMES M. PULLOW

A Mountie man was found missing this morning for three weeks, the Chief Constable said. "We have received a report of a missing person, and our search continues." The man was last seen on July 5, and no trace of him has been found since.

The search has been difficult, as the area where the man was last seen is largely covered in thick brush and dense forest.

The Mountie man, a 32-year-old father of two, has been missing since his vehicle was discovered abandoned near a remote cabin.

Several colleagues who went to search for him reported seeing tracks in the snow, but none of them have been able to follow them.

"We are doing everything we can to find him," the Chief Constable said. "Our thoughts are with his family and loved ones at this difficult time."

A City Without Blackness

MIAMI BEACH, Fla.—The site of the Republican National Convention is sometimes called a "magic city," because of its elaborate beach resorts and luxurious hotels.

As you enter this year-round vacation-land, you notice its skyscrapers towering high above palm trees, broad avenues, and pleasant blue waters. You can only feel that this is a city of vivid beauty.

But this is also a city that brushes aside the problems of black people in America. It seems to be more that this was a perfect site for the Grand Old Party's overwhelmingly-white convention.

In this city, there are no unemployment problems, there are no ghetto problems, there are no slums. Because in this city, blacks have only sought to entertain the rich. This city can truly be thought of as a city without blackness.

And the Beat Goes On

3 Delegations Trying
To Represent Alabama

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—At the Democratic National Convention that began this week, the issues for Alabama are George C. Wallace, racism, and political change.

Three issues stand out in Alabama, a state where communists have long called for a white revolution and where segregationists have long been fighting for their cause. These issues are segregation, politics, and the need for political change.

Segregation in Alabama has been a long-standing issue, with the state's education system being one of the most segregated in the country. The NAACP and the SNCC have been active in the state, and the civil rights movement has had a significant impact on the state's politics.

Politics is another issue that has been prominent in Alabama. The state has a history of political corruption and has been represented by several controversial politicians, including Wallace and Thurmond.

Finally, the need for political change is a prominent issue in Alabama. The state has been slow to adopt new policies and has been resistant to change, which has led to a lack of innovation and progress.

These issues are important for Alabama, and they will likely play a role in the state's politics in the future.

‘Run-Around’ On Hospital Board?

BY FRANCES STUBBS

The Tallahassee Improvement Association is trying to get back the hospital medical board, which was taken away from their control in 1967. The TIA has been working for the past few weeks to get the Medical Board restored to what it was before. They believe that the Medical Board is necessary for the proper functioning of the hospital.

Frank Strickland, a member of the TIA, said in an interview that before he left the board, he and his colleagues had been working to establish special provisions for Negroes. He said that the board was intended to represent the Negro community.

Strickland added, “We want Negroes placed on the board, and we do mean Negroes. After that meeting, he said, Hethcox had some Negroes on the board—and we do mean Negroes. Strickland said •. “We want Negroes placed on the board of trustees, and we’re not otherwise.”

Some Negroes might pay 10 that much to get the board, but no one has ever joined, said Strickland, but no one has ever joined. It is said that
